What It Meant to be a Coyote - Book II continues the anecdotal histories of the men who attended Kansas Wesleyan University, a small Methodist college located in Kansas. Their stories going back to the 1920's when Rupel Perkins, the first black man to play collegiate football in Kansas traveled from Athens, Ohio, citing the impact of coaches, teammates, teachers and girl friends are revealed with intimate details about how their lives were influenced through attendance at KWU. Since the Great Depression, World War II, Korea and Viet-Nam, men came from a long way, some to play, some to get away, and some to stay.
